

As I travel around the country, I do feel that I have the right to listen to the programming of my choice, just as some might enjoy rock or talk, news, country, contemporary, sports and what ever they might like. I in no way should be forced to listen to a radio or TV station I have no interest in. If someone else wants to listen to them, then by all means let them, it's their right under our great Constitution to do so, it's the American way, but don't try to modify or take my rights as an American. I have fought in Viet Nam, and have been overseas fighting in our current endeavors three times from Kuwait, Iraq and Afghanistan as of this writing. I have seen my fellow Americans and Brothers give up there lives to protect those of you that stay behind and do what... try to take away not only my rights and the rights of others to listen to the airwaves as we please. This is not a company trying to monopolize the airwaves; it's selling a service... I pay for the right to listen to what I want and I receive a service for it. If you don't want to pay the cost then you don't get to listen to anything this company is selling. My right of free choice to listen is not the only thing at stake. What's next, my right to buy a book, a newspaper because it gives the news of all area of this great country and not just the local news to a given area?Sincerely
Stuart J. Kenworthy